Where's The Beef?

The headline not only symbolizes a national food chain and a presidential candidate's inquiry, but could easily apply to this week's Senate elections. Where indeed is the beef? That is, where are the necessary components for a "democratic" election? It seems to us that the lackadaisical attitude of the whole student population has infected and is threatening the future of the student government system.

To start with, out of the eight available positions, only six students were interested enough to run. And only the Senate President's seat is being contested by two candidates. (The four running unopposed might as well prepare for their upcoming responsibilities.) The two Appropriations Board and the Vice-President for Student Affairs positions will go unfilled until the new Senate and Appropriations Board members announce appointees.

How could students allow this to happen? Were the requirements for candidacy too stringent? It's true that prospective position holders had to be a part of the year's Senate, either as committee members or as representatives. Would opening up the nominations to the entire student body solve the problem? We don't think so. If nominees had not participated previously in student government, they would not be knowledgeable in the volume of work required of them in the Fall. Their installment as student leaders would be disastrous.

How about present Senate members? Were they inactive in promoting or advertising for replacements for their jobs? Perhaps, but we're certainly not going to blame them. Their time is already limited. Besides, the elections occur each Spring; a clear signal to anyone with any desire in seeking a position for the following year.

You voters however should also take some lumps. Voting is a three day affair. It began today and runs through Friday. Voting machines will be used just like the real world. And just like the real world, only a handful will bother to vote. We realize no real choice exists, but numbers do count. If no ballots are cast, student leaders don't know how you feel. Does it mean you agree with the present senate system, or do you feel it is useless and futile to maintain? A strong turnout would show support for the candidates and the present student government structure. The Flyer urges students to vote and show support for the present system, which we feel has served students well.

We can't leave this commentary by knocking everyone else and placing the candidates on pedestals. We have gripes with some of them too. For instance, last Friday, a meeting was scheduled for all candidates to attend. Only four showed up. The Flyer intended to use this forum to photograph and talk to the nominees. Instead, we spent valuable time hunting down candidates for photos and their fact sheets. We hope they will be more accessible once installed in their positions.

The Flyer will support no candidate for Senate President publicly. (We do have our preference, however.) As for the unopposed students, we hope you will continue the fine work of your predecessors.

To the outgoing Senate and Appropriations Board officers, we wish them well in their future plans. We feel they did a good job this past year and their presence will be missed in the Fall. Incoming officers have some large shoes to fill.

Dear Editor,

This letter is unlike most letters to the Editor, because it's not written to air a complaint or a misfortune, but to congratulate you and your staff on a fantastic redesigned and updated Flyer. It is both innovative and well thought out.

As an ex-News Editor of the Flyer I appreciate the hard work and time that goes into making up the bi-weekly issues. The Flyer this semester shows real professional journalism in both its finely written and informative articles, and also the layout and new design of the entire Flyer.

Md. Primary Set For May 8

Voter Registration Easy On Campus

By Mary Ellen Larson

Another presidential election year is upon us, and if you are not registered to vote, the following will tell you how, when and where. Of course the "why" is a little more complex. You may be tired of all the promises you've heard before and all the wonderful plans to alleviate the problems in this country. Consequently, you may be thinking what a waste of time it is to vote. Wrong. Not only is it your right to vote, it is your opportunity to have a voice in the very important decision of electing a president. It is because of these problems that your participation—your ability to get to the essence of what each candidate is saying and to decide if this is what you believe—is so necessary.

Each of the democratic presidential candidates, Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson and Walter Mondale has been vigorously vying for your attention in his hope to win the democratic nomination. You can choose your favorite of these on May 8, the Maryland primary election, if you are registered to vote as a democrat.

In the State of Maryland, only those affiliated with a major political party can vote in that party's primary election. If you are already registered to vote, and if you are affiliated with the Democratic Party, you are qualified to vote in the party's primary on May 8.

The general election is on November 6. If you will be a Maryland voter, the reference desk in Blackwell Library has forms to fill out to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot. (If you are an out-of-state student, call or write your hometown election board for this information.) The form to register to vote is simply a card you can mail to your local board of elections with your name and address. The address of your local election board is on the card. The election board must receive this request by September 24. The board will then send you a voter registration application. Registration deadline for the general election is October 8.

The Student Absentee Ballot Application, also available at the reference desk, will be required if you will not be able to vote in person on election day. The procedure for obtaining an absentee ballot is straightforward. After you receive your ballot, vote the ballot and return it to the election board office before or by 8 p.m. election day, November 6.

Maryland, a predominantly democratic state, is a possible, though unlikely stopping place for the democratic candidates, according to Hampton Brittingham, former Salisbury City Treasurer and member of the Democratic State Central Committee. "It is possible they will make a quick trip here," said Brittingham, "but I don't think they'd stay long." Brittingham, currently on the Wicomico County Board of Elections, remembers a 50% to 60% voter turnout in the past from the conservative Eastern Shore area.

Your vote could make that turnout even higher. More importantly, it would make an impact on the selection of our next president of the United States.

$10,000 In RHA Funds May Be Marked For Annual Dorm Awards

By Miriam Cairns

Last September the Residence Hall Association was dissolved and an ad hoc committee was formed under the Student Senate to determine the needs of the school and form recommendations for disbursing the approximate $10,000 left in the RHA treasury.

According to Wesley Stafford, vice president of programming and events for the Student Senate, the committee and senate recently suggested that the money be invested in the Salisbury State College Foundation, Inc., a school trust fund. At a return of 10% a year, the students proposed that the $1,000 per year in interest be put toward an award for an outstanding dorm person chosen each semester from each dorm.

The proposal was given to Barry King, director of resident life. No decision has been made by the housing department and no criteria for giving such an award have been determined, said Stafford.

Other suggestions for the disbursement of the money were to donate to the Health Center or to set up a par course, an exercise circuit around the campus. As for the RHA being rejuvenated, Stafford said, "There would have to be concrete evidence that it would not die from apathy again."

The students on the ad hoc committee were: Bruce Laire, Debbie Moxey, Denise Fessler, Gene Fox, Ray Chin, Todd Gallen, Tim Darcy, and Denny Mears.

Hart Edges Other Candidates For Student Support

(CPS) When a lonely candidate named Gary Hart visited Albany, N.Y. in May, 1983, Gov. Mario Cuomo was too busy to see him. Hart's organizers gave up trying to book a room at the State University of New York-Albany (SUNYA) campus because, as one organizer remembers it, they were worried the candidate couldn't draw a crowd big enough to fill one.

Things have changed. In the weeks before the April 3rd New York primary, the campus chapter of Americans with Hart had about 100 volunteers, about 40 of whom were "active," says Michael Schmalt, the campus campaign's co-coordinator.

And while there is student support for both Walter Mondale and Jesse Jackson on the campus, Patty Salkin, the officially-uncommitted head of the Albany State Young Democrats, concedes that "from what I've seen and personal contact, I'd say there's a lot of student interest in Hart."

Indeed, for the first time since 1972, a democratic presidential candidate seems to have caught fire among a broad cross section of students around the country.

Over 5000 students heard Hart speak at the University of Illinois two weeks ago. About 1200 showed up to listen to him at California-Berkeley, while another 300 could not get in. During the Massachusetts primary, Hart handily won student precincts in Amherst.

Now Eric Schwartz, Hart's youth coordinator, speaks of mobilizing a nationwide volunteer corps of 10,000 students to match Walter Mondale's volunteers from organized labor.

At Marquette, Hart seems to be drawing a lot of support on a campus that is "about 80 percent Republican," reports Kevin Jereczek, president of Marquette's Young Democrats' chapter.

With the possible exception of schools in New York and Pennsylvania, adds the nominally-uncommitted Dave Smith of Young Democrats' headquarters in Washington, D.C., "campuses are pro-Hart as opposed to Mondale."

"I sense a great lack of enthusiasm and lack of inspiration for Mondale," says Cathy Campbell, Berkeley's student body president.

Campbell believes Hart's "spunk" and faithful evocation of the Kennedy style probably help attract student support as much as anything.

Mondale's student organizers contend their volunteers are more concerned with issues than Hart's.

Book Rack Shoplifters Warned

By Terri Tresp

A shoplifting policy for the campus bookstore, the Book Rack, has been drafted by the Dean of Students Office and Public Safety, and is effective immediately, according to Assistant Dean of Students John Fields.

The policy is not a lengthy document, but a clear statement of purpose and procedure said Fields. Under the policy all shoplifters will be prosecuted regardless of the cost of the item stolen.

"We're not trying to set traps for people, just prevent the problem from growing," Fields said.

As defined by Public Safety Director Jim Phillips, shoplifting includes concealing merchandise, changing the price of an item in order to pay a lower price and leaving the bookstore without paying for merchandise.

Store employees only need probable cause to detain a customer for shoplifting, Phillips said. Individuals don't have to leave the store, only conceal merchandise.

Notices will be posted in the Book Rack regarding the shoplifting policy.

If an individual is caught shoplifting they will be detained at the bookstore until a public safety officer arrives to identify the person. The case will then be presented to the district court commissioner who decides whether the accused will be issued a criminal summons or be arrested.

Phillips said if a summons is issued, the accused must sign it and agree to appear in court on a designated date. If arrested, the accused is taken to Public Safety where he is charged with theft and fingerprinted. A bail hearing is then scheduled.

The maximum penalty for shoplifting merchandise valued under $300 is a $500 fine and/or 18 months in jail, Phillips said.

If the accused refuses to sign a summons, the commissioner can change the decision to arrest. If the accused doesn't appear in court, a warrant is issued for his arrest. Phillips said campus police will take most action, but local police may assist in off-campus arrests.

Individuals charged will also face administrative action by the college, Fields said. This may include probation, denial of bookstore privileges, suspension or expulsion.

Fields said only one or two shoplifting cases are reported each semester, but there is no way of estimating a figure of what is lost in undiscovered incidents.

Students To Design Own Dorm Policies

By Terri Tresp

It's official now. Students will be allowed to design their own contracts concerning overnight guests and other residence hall problems under guidelines of the Roommate Starter Kits described in the March 21 issue of the Flyer.

Residence Life Director Barry King said the policy, which was developed by a group of seven students and three administrators, will be implemented next Fall.

The program was presented to the entire RA staff the Tuesday before Spring Break and a general student meeting was scheduled the following Thursday but King said only three people attended.

The meeting was intended to present the finalized package to a cross section of the student body, King said. But he feels the word had gotten out that no sweeping changes like those in the first housing proposals would be made concerning overnight guests, so students lost interest. It's possible the RAs spread the word about the decision after their meeting, too, King said.

During the Fall check-in students will be given booklets that outline the college's stands on guests, sharing room space, study hours, sharing personal possessions, security and sleeping. The kit also provides guidelines and suggestions for students to design their own policies.

"The concept gives roommates latitude to negotiate living conditions, but also provides the structure of the institutional values that meets college needs," said King.

King said the first week of the semester, students should discuss the issues in the booklet. Then in the second week, RAs will call individual conferences with roommates to help them make decisions.

King stressed that these kits are optional. If students have lived together before and don't feel the need for a contract, they don't have to write one. If future problems arise, the residence life staff will use the college values expressed in the booklet to solve the situation.

Any agreement is also negotiable. "The agreements aren't written in stone," King said. Students can rework their contracts as long as the changes meet values stipulated by the college.

In the long run, King feels these kits will make RA jobs easier. It will also provide the opportunity for students and RAs to get to know each other better through the conferences.

King said this system has been tried in other colleges, but said he has never seen programs that include the institutional values.

Through all policy negotiations, King said he found it significant that students' participation in the process had a real impact on the final decision. The meeting between students and administrators in early March was the turning point. The students expressed their objections to the proposals articulately and handled themselves well, King said, so the policy committee took their suggestions into consideration and tried to work with them.

The College Republicans, on the other hand, say they have a registration budget, which they'll use for the general election.

At SUNYA, College Republicans chapter President Will Kamishlian says that, until the general election in the fall, his group will "sit back and watch the Democrats slit each others' throats."

"The interest is there" in supporting President Reagan's re-election drive, Kamishlian says, though "it's not on the surface."

"Shoplifting really isn't a chronic problem at the college," Fields said. "But, it's something we need to take a stand on."

The reasoning behind the policy, according to Fields, is that shoplifting is a crime and has to be dealt with. A college campus is no different than the outside community and the same laws exist. He added that shoplifting does nothing to keep bookstore prices down.

Clothing, stuffed animals, pencils and other small items that are easily concealed are generally subject to shoplifting, Phillips said.

Fields added that he noticed many incidents occur near Christmas when students are "looking for gifts."

Other related problems the bookstore encounters are students trying to sell back stolen textbooks and getting refunds for books they didn't buy. One trick used, Phillips said, is buying a book and getting a receipt for it. Then, taking the receipt back to the store, taking another copy of the book off the shelf and requesting a refund.

4 Candidates Unopposed, 3 Seats Unfilled

Elections Decided Before They Start

Elections for Senate and Appropriations Board positions are being held today through Friday in the College Center lounge. The positions to be voted on are Senate President, Vice Presidents of Academic Affairs, & Senate Affairs, Appropriations Board Chairman and Appropriations Board Student Representative.

Only the Senate President position is contested. The remainder are unopposed. Three positions however, have no candidates. Two seats in the Appropriations Board and Vice President for Student Affairs will go unfilled. The newly elected Senate will appoint students to these slots.

Craig Fringer

Sophomore Craig Fringer is seeking the position of President for the upcoming year. Fringer realizes he will be taking on a large amount of responsibility, but looks forward to the challenge. He wishes "to serve the student body as its link to the administration." Presently, Fringer feels that the visitation policy recently passed settles that controversial issue. For the future, he would look into the Judicial System in an attempt to provide "a more expanded schedule of sanctions in order to make the system more flexible."

Fringer acknowledges to having "practical management experience and an understanding of Senate Proceedings."

Within the Senate itself, Fringer "will look into ways to ...streamline to increase efficiency and better serve the students."

Fringer believes his involvement in WSSC, the Judicial Board and past experiences with the Flyer and ROTC will be an asset. He acknowledges to having "practical management experience and an understanding of Senate proceedings." He is also willing to be responsible for (his) actions.

Scott Shockley

Running against Fringer is junior Scott Shockley. Shockley, a Philosophy major, is a member of the Philosophical Society, Poli/Psy. Club, the Traffic Committee and a past member of RHA. Shockley desires to not only help student activities, but to help the college overall achieve its goals and projects.

Shockley's goal is "making the Senate more visual and more active with students."

As President, Shockley would be interested in decisions and policy changes emerging from the Housing Department. For example, he would fight the removal of kitchens from Chesapeake should that issue be renewed. He also feels the lottery in its present form hurts upperclassmen and places no consideration on distance from school.

"Making the Senate more visual and more active with students" is Shockley's plan. He feels with his leadership qualities and his organizational experiences he can make '84-'85 a successful year.

Those candidates for the Senate running unopposed are Kathy Becker and Jeannine Marie Clark. They are seeking the Vice President of Academic Affairs and VP of Senate Affairs respectively.

Kathy Becker

Becker is presently active in the Senate and the Medical Careers Club. She wants to become more involved with college activities and clarify campus issues. Becker "feels that campus issues are often misunderstood. She would like to help convey correct facts." Because of her "ideas, enthusiasm and experience in organizational offices," Becker feels she has a lot to offer.

Jeannine Marie Clark

As a student representative to the Senate this past year, Jeannine Marie Clark wants to further her involvement in all college (student) activities. As Vice President of Senate Affairs, Clark would look into revising the current probation procedures; the position would also allow her to "incorporate (her) ideas into the college community." Clark "feels qualified to accept the responsibilities and challenges" that would be placed before her.

Nini Sante

Seeking the position of Appropriations Board Chairperson is Nini Sante. She has been a student representative of the board throughout this year. Sante has worked closely with the present chairperson, Kathy Steinhauer and understands the intricacies of the job. Since this relates to her field of study, (business administration) Sante looks upon this as an opportunity to "advance up the ladder." She also will try to "better student organizations."

Robert Poole

Robert Poole, a sophomore business major has had little experience in the present Senate but feels he has "the ability to see and resolve problems." As a student representative on the Appropriations Board, Poole wants to "put (his) ideas into effect." By establishing himself as a decision maker on campus, Poole would exert influence in other areas as well, including the present lottery system which he feels should be based on "academic status." Poole is presently involved with intramural programs.

Nini Sante and Robert Poole will work together next year on the Board.

Two seats on the board will remain unfilled until the new chairperson appoints someone. Although these elections will only decide who will be the next Senate President, all students are urged to vote. A strong turnout will show that students accept the present form of student government, which was instituted last Spring.

Men's Lacrosse Moving Upward

By Keith Rhine

Salisbury scores and takes the lead. This scene has been repeated many times thus far. SSC has averaged close to fourteen goals a game and given up only seven goals a game. No wonder the Gulls are cruising along with an undefeated record of 9-0.

A positive attitude is something Coach Janszyk is trying to instill into his team. Janszyk feels this team has to play every game with a positive attitude. Every player must be able to play up to their potential or in other words to give it their all.

The Gulls have only had one game where they had to fight it out to the bitter end. When they played St. Lawrence, it was the first game the Gulls had to really battle back. Trailing 8-6 with only two minutes and fourteen seconds remaining, the Gulls put together a fantastic comeback. Getting goals from Roger Koch, Steve Hurley, and Jim Huelscamp, the Gulls beat St. Lawrence 9-8. Janszyk was very happy to see these guys show such determination. After all, Janszyk feels determination is very important.

As of April 8, the Gulls were ranked third in the nation, Division III, but that should change by the time you read this article. This past Sunday, they beat Roanoke, the nation's second ranked team. Again the gulls showed determination by beating Roanoke, 11-5.

The Gulls have been showing a fine all-around offense. Steve Hurley, Rob Clark, Jim Huelscamp and Roger Koch, have all been continually putting the ball into the opposition's net.

We can't forget the defense, which Janszyk feels has been playing very well. According to Janszyk, Richard Abel and Craig Devin have showed good stuff on defense. Also goalie Kevin McFarlen is continually blocking out the opposition's shots.

Janszyk can't point out any teams that he feels are exceptionally tough, because as he puts it, "they're all tough." Coming up for the Gulls are Kutztown State, St. Mary's, Washington, and Western Maryland. What will it take for them to win their remaining games? According to Janszyk, just plain old consistency.

SSC Hosts Indoor Hockey Tournament

On March 30 and 31, Salisbury State hosted the Indoor Hockey Tournament. Indoor hockey, "say what?" Yes, field hockey played indoors, but with the exception of a few different rules, it is basically the same game that is played outdoors. The major difference of the two is, indoor only fields six players at a time, while outdoor fields eleven players. Also like ice hockey, there are boards that surround the playing area. The indoor game is very fast moving. Other than those differences, both games are very similar.

A total of fourteen teams participated in this tournament, including a team from SSC. The University of Iowa took the honors as champions. Iowa is a Division I school. SSC was the only Division

III school to participate, so the quality of play was exceptional. To take the championship Iowa had to beat West Chester's Alumni. This West Chester team had a few past U.S. National Team players.

SSC's team had a tough time of it against these highly competitive teams. However, Salisbury lost two key players, either to injury or sickness. Coach Karen Weaver injured her ankle and couldn't play. Another key player came down with a stomach virus. Even though with two key players out of action and very tough competition, the She-Gulls did manage to beat Eastern Kentucky, a Division I school.

Weaver does add Salisbury was asked to host this tournament once again next year.

Spring Teams Are Shaping Up

Before Spring break, Spring sports were just getting underway. Now after two weeks, most of the Spring teams are in the thick of their season.

After getting off to a slow start, the baseball team is starting to come up with the wins. During the game, the Gulls scored three quick goals to win the game, 9-8. The Gulls have an all around offense with four players over the twenty point mark. Steve Hurley leads the team with thirty-three points, followed by Rob Clark, Jim Huelscamp, and Roger Koch.

Rhine's Line

By Keith Rhine

their annual spring tour through Virginia and the Carolinas, the Gulls won four out of seven games. Their most impressive win was a 5-0 victory over UNC-Wilmington. As of April 6th, their record stands at 6-6-3. Leading the Gulls in hitting are John Massey, hitting .365, and Jeff Brubaker, hitting .348. Jeff has five homeruns so far, which ups his career homerun total to twenty-one. Those twenty-one homeruns tie him with SSC grad Robin Knight for the school record.

Men's tennis didn't have the same results as baseball during their southern trip. They lost four of their seven matches during Spring break. Their trip did end up on the winning note. In their last two matches of the trip, they came up winners, by beating Pembroke and N.C. Wesleyan. Coming back to Salisbury on April 3rd, they beat UMES. As of April 5th, their record stands at 4-5.

The lacrosse team, as of April 6th, are sporting a 8-0 record. In all of their games, except one, Salisbury completely dominated their opponents. Their one tough home was against St. Lawrence. This showed the Gulls do have guts. Down by two goals in the final two minutes and fourteen seconds of

After going 10-11 last year, the womens softball team is rebounding towards a fine year. As of April 7th, their record stands at 6-2-1. Much of the credit should go to sophomore pitcher Dawn Taylor, who has recorded all six wins for the Gulls. Those six wins include a no-hitter against Division I school Bucknell. That is an extraordinary feat, so congratulations Dawn.

Women's lacrosse is just getting underway. They've had a couple of canceled games.

One noteworthy accomplishment in Women's track is Ann McKenzie qualifying for the nationals. Ann, who competes in the triple jump, met the qualifications for the nationals at a recent meet.

I've recently heard criticism about not giving enough recognition to wrestlers Mike McNerny and John Parry, both of whom won All-American honors at the nationals. I know now I should've given them more recognition, maybe writing a whole story on those guys. I am sorry that I did overlook their accomplishment, because it is very noteworthy. If anybody does have any complaints about the sports coverage, please feel free to stop over the Flyer office in Tawes, and talk to me.

Intramural Update

B-Ball Champions Decided

By Candy Edwards

Taking a look at the Intramural Department's calendar, we sure can tell April showers are bringing more than just May flowers here at SSC. We have so much going on that even the floods don't stand a chance.

The Basketball Tournament finished last week, leaving a close margin between the winners and losers. In the men's highly skilled division, high scorers Mike Klunk and Tony Hartman helped the Doggie Styles to pull a 44-29 victory over the Nasty-Boh's. Jim Lawrence and Alex Sweetak were high scorers for the Boh's. In the men's skilled A championship, Casual Factors outbid the 69er's, 54-49. Brian Caswell and Steve Kline ranked high for the Casual's while Ray Moore and Mark Harrison scored big for the 69er's. The men's skilled B championship was taken by Air Force I with a 42-36 win over the Pap Smear's. High scorers included Brian Tooney, Tim Beanly, Steve Groff, and Dave Walston.

For the women's division Maureen Foley aided in the Sneak Attack's victory over the Capers, with Rhonda Argo and Penni Capp as high scorers. The winning numbers for the game were 31-24.

In volleyball this week, the teams began their season by relieving a lot of vengeance on quite a few balls. One of the highlights included the Naturals vs. Penthouse Players. The Players won the best 2-out-of-3 with scores of 15-3/15-11. Jay Lusetsky's, Defenders of the Faith were defeated by Rocky Rinehart's. The Team, 15-5/15-12. High Scorers, coached by Karen Noticcka won, 15-8/15-9, against the Spikers. Coach Wayne Schister's, Setters, claimed a 15-14/15-8 victory over AE PHI. Gene Fox and his Screamer's took on Jerry's Kids for a 15-6/15-8 win. Look for more on the volleyball events.

Softball will begin April 9. We're glad to say that never before have we had so many teams to compete for the championships. The roster boasts a fantastic 33 teams this season. The women's division, usually the smallest in participation, will consist of 10 teams out for the tournament titles.

Look for teams such as the Main Rockers, Bearded Clams, Ceaser & Company, and Sensi-Buds in the men's highly skilled division. For the skilled division, Awesome, The Chin Parsies, and The Bad News Gulls are only a few of the contenders. Needle Pushers, Pseudo-Jocks and the Razzle Dazzles plan to offer high competition in the women's division. Find a field and come on out to watch the fun.

Sign-up sheets are now available at the Intramurals office for a 10 kilometer race to be held April 28. For details contact the intramural Recreation office in Maggs Gym, Room 119.

The Salisbury State Program Board is initiating a Frisbee Tournament. Intramurals is co-sponsoring the event. Anyone interested in participating can contact either the Intramurals office or SSPB room 101 in the College Center.

Wheelchair Games Meeting

MARYLAND WHEELCHAIR GAMES volunteers should attend a meeting Wednesday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Maggs, Room 205.

Run For Life

Scores of SSC students will join hundreds of Eastern Shore residents in the American Heart Association's fifth annual "Run for Life" next Saturday morning (April 14) in Salisbury City Park.

SSC Basketball Coach Ward Lambert, coordinator of the run which raises funds for the national and Eastern Shore division of the Heart Association, urged more SSC students to sign up for the "Run for Life" this week in the athletic department offices.

"This is not really a competitive event," he said. "It's cooperative. Everyone who runs wins because the goal is to raise funds for vitally needed heart research and education programs."

The race will begin at 10 a.m. in the park near the Wicomico Civic Center. Students may choose to run two, five or ten kilometers (6.2 miles). Prizes and trophies will be awarded to men and women runners in each of seven different age divisions and to those who raise the most funds from sponsors. Runners may enter as individuals or in teams.

The registration fee is $4, and each runner should have at least one sponsor who pledges any amount if the runner completes the course he has chosen to run.

Every runner will receive a free "Run for Life" T-shirt and refreshments donated by local organizations at the finish line. A team of SSC athletic coaches, trainers and students will monitor the race. Medical personnel and equipment will be available if needed.

Nearly a thousand persons have competed in the "Run for Life" since the annual spring event began in 1980, and a total of $35,000 has been raised. The fund raising goal this year is $10,000.

Lambert himself and members of his family will compete this year as will the son and daughter of Tennis Coach Dean Burroughs.

Five members of the SSC varsity tennis team—seniors Rob Barnes and Bill Todd, junior Dan Miles, sophomore Jim Dixon and freshman Sam David—will run as a team in the "Run for Life."

The "Run for Life" is a campus-community effort with Lambert as coordinator of the run working closely with Sandy Riggan, director of the Eastern Shore division of the Heart Association.

The run is co-sponsored by the Salisbury Daily Times and Campbell Soup-Swanson. Peninsula Bank is donating plaques to each team which raises more than $200 in donations.

Among the organizations sending teams this year are both the Salisbury City Police and the Maryland State Police, the U.S. Marine Corp., Wicomico Senior High School, Trinity Methodist Church, Spence Baptist Church, and the Seagull Road Runners.

SSC dormitories and student organizations are welcome to enter as teams, and students may enter individually by registering at the SSC Athletic Department from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. Thursday or Friday.

Special Olympics Coming to SSC

On April 28 the Special Olympics will be held here from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. The Salisbury Jaycees and Jaycee Women are coordinating this event.

They are asking for individuals and student organizations to help chaperone the participants throughout the games. Chaperone's are to meet next to the Chesapeake dorm at 8 a.m. for registration and instructions.

The responsibilities of chaperones, or "huggers" as they are often called, are to make sure the participants are at the right event at the right time and to see to it that participants receive their lunch. (Chaperones will get lunch and refreshments, also.)

The project is beneficial and rewarding for both the participants and the chaperones. They need approximately 150 chaperones, so that the games will be a success.

If you have any questions or would like to help, contact Susan Brown at 749-9341 or 742-5626 or Kristi Euselio at 749-6276 or 546-2181 (ext. 236).

Girls Swinging Well

Milk Intolerance Dimensional Paper

Individuals vary in their tolerance for lactose, the principle carbohydrate in milk. Milk intolerance is usually attributed to a deficiency of the enzyme lactase. When lactase is absent, lactose cannot be digested, and it pulls water into the intestinal tract. This usually results in gas, cramps, and diarrhea. Lactose-reduced beverages are often needed as supplements or diets requiring extra calories or protein.

Below are beverages which are tasty and lactose-reduced supplements developed by the dietitians at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Md.

Reduced Lactose

1. Milk-Free Orange Shake:
¼ c. orange juice
2 dixie cups orange sherbert
7 non-dairy creamers

2. Milk-Free Raspberry Shake:

"Dimensional Paper," an exhibition of handmade paperworks, original prints and mixed media pieces opened at the art gallery of SSC on Saturday, April 7 and will continue through April 30.

This show was made possible by Pyramid Prints and Paperworks, Inc., of Baltimore and by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council. The twenty-one participating national and regional artists were invited by Pyramid Prints and Paperworks to exhibit works that "describe paper's significance as a structure." After its appearance here in Salisbury, Dimensional Paper will travel to Prince George's Community College in October.

Pyramid Prints and Paperworks is a non-profit organization founded in 1980 by artist Helen Frederick for the purpose of continuing the ancient art of papermaking and exploring Western and Eastern papermaking techniques through workshops, demonstrations and lectures. Members also pursue printmaking and experimenting with handmade paper as an art form.

The exhibition contains works by Bette Alexander, Sharron Antholt, Suzanne Anker, Gwen Cooper, Helen Frederick, Luis Flores, Coco Gordon, Keiko Hara, Zarina Hashmi, Michi Itami, Anne McConville, Jane Kelly Morais, Bob Nugent, Suthat Pinruethai, Charles Risselada, Joseph Roberson, Carla Rosenzweig, Joan Sterrenburg, Joyce Schmidt, Marilyn Sward, and Joseph Zirker.

The gallery is open to the public days and evenings, seven days a week. For exact hours, call the Art Department at 543-6270. For information concerning group tours of this and other exhibitions, call Mrs. Nancy Turner at 543-6273 or 749-1228.

Pot Party

The 7th Annual Faculty Pot Party will be held today, April 11 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Holloway Hall Annex Mud Hut.

The Faculty Pot Party is designed to help students learn the art of pottery by teaching others. This year's guest artist potter will be Mr. Daniel Heinecke of Wire Pond Pottery, Ocean City, Md., who will demonstrate the art of throwing large pottery pieces. Heinecke has been a professional potter for nearly fifteen years and has traveled across the country to study and work with internationally known ceramists. He has made his home and pottery on the Eastern Shore and has gained the respect as a potter to many, both on and off the peninsula. Dan will be lecturing and performing at noon at the party.

An added feature this year, weather permitting, will be a Raku pot firing. Small pots, made in advance by students, will be available for glazing and quick firing by the guest in the 16th century Japanese method of Raku.

Munchies will be provided by the classes at this exciting annual event.

History Symposium Deemed A Success

By Kris Nystrom

More than 100 people gathered in the auditorium of Holloway Hall this past Saturday, March 31, for the first Pemberton Hall 18th Century Studies Symposium sponsored by the Pemberton Hall Foundation, Department of History/Political Science at SSC and the Delmarva Historical Archives Center. It is hoped that this event will spawn enough interest to make it an annual attraction.

The day's activities included nine experts from throughout Maryland and Virginia speaking on a kaleidoscope of colonial life in Maryland. Architecture, anecdotes of 18th century life, the history of Salisbury, botanical explorations, colonial gardens, economy and archaeological excavations were the topics of interest at this day-long symposium. The highlight of the afternoon was a tour of Pemberton Hall.

Kathryn Bloom, curator of Rose Hill Manor in Frederick, Maryland, and participant in the event, claimed that "it is important for people like us to go to this kind of thing to keep up on new research in the field."

The symposium was not limited to vocational interest only, however, as native Salisburian Mrs. Floyd Bentley pointed out, "It's like reading a history book," she said, "only you get it done all in one day."

The culmination of this event reflects back on Pemberton Hall. Pemberton Hall was built by Isaac Handy in 1741 on the west bank of the Wicomico River. It is presently only minutes from downtown Salisbury. Handy's lumber business, known as "Handy's Landing," became the city of Salisbury in 1732. The historical significance of this estate justifies its preservation currently undertaken by the Pemberton Hall Foundation, Inc. In addition, the Foundation intends to reconstruct an authentic copy of a typical Eastern Shore 18th century plantation on the 61 acre plot of land surrounding the gambrel-roofed brick home scheduled to become a historical park.

The restoration of Pemberton Hall and the Pemberton Hall 18th Century Studies Symposium are a unique and educational asset of Wicomico County. The historical significance of Salisbury, Wicomico County and the Eastern Shore are, relatively speaking, only just being tapped. The thirst for this sort of information is great, and the birth of community awareness is an indicator of the many things to come.

Gene Geiger of the SSC Biology department felt that this symposium "is a good start. But it is geared to too specific interests." He further explained that to attract more community involvement, "they should have less specialized topics and more visual activities. I think that the interest is there to entertain even more people than those attending here."

This being the first event of its kind, its landmark status should stimulate such improvements whereas more avocational interests can be sated. The success of this symposium appears to promise that hope for the future.

"Counselmime" Scheduled To Appear

By Kris Nystrom

The Deer's Head Hospice, Coastal Hospice and the SSC Psychology Department will be sponsoring a program in the Caruthers Auditorium entitled "Counselmime" on April 13 from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. The program is open to the public and admission is free.

"Counselmime" is an afternoon of skits by mime artists Lenore Lynch, professor of psychology, counseling and health at Dundalk Community College, and Cecil Fick, counselor at the Maryland Library for the Blind, dramatizing scenes related to illness, death and grief.

Through movement alone, these mimes will portray creative scenarios concentrating on the relationships between patients, clients and other concerned members of the community such as friends, volunteers and care givers.

"Counselmime" will be narrated by Lee Richmond, licensed private practitioner of psychology and associate professor at Johns Hopkins University, where she heads the counseling education program. Her comments are expected to create insightful contemplation and thoughtful discussion in the audience.

"It certainly would be important for nursing, social work and psychology students," said Coastal Hospice organizer Marion Keenan, "and possibly students of philosophy as well."

The Counselmime troupe is experienced in performing the extremes of a variety of professional situations. In addition to death and dying, Counselmime has dramatized careers dealing with aging and problematic youth and blindness and the handicapped. In a Baltimore Sun article, a student nurse was quoted as saying Counselmime is "sort of like a coloring book. In the silence, you aren't told what the colors are to be, and it's up to you to put in your own colors."

Since the purpose of Counselmime is to aid those attending in grasping their true feelings toward death and grief and exploring the ramifications of those feelings with others, it seems appropriate that the show be silent. The subject is at the same time very public and very private; this dichotomy is a theme inherent to mime.

Grace Paley Comes To SSC

Acclaimed short story writer Grace Paley will present selected readings from her work on Thursday, April 12 on the Caruthers Hall Auditorium stage at 7:30 p.m. The appearance of Paley, who is currently a member of the faculty of the Creative Writing Program at Sarah Lawrence College in New York, is being co-sponsored by the Department of English and the Faculty Cultural Events

Committee. The event is free and open to the public; no tickets are required.

Grace Paley was born and educated in New York, where she still lives. She has taught at Columbia University and at Sarah Lawrence; has published fiction in Esquire, New American Review, and The Atlantic; has published two books: The Little Disturbances of Man and Enormous Changes At The Last Minute.

"An understanding of loneliness, lust, selfishness and . . . fatigue that is splendidly comic and unladylike." - Philip Roth

"Her stories are shrewd, funny, and full of feeling; she has a girl's charm and a woman's strength; she is an exciting writer." - Herbert Gold

"Grace Paley is one of our funniest and most original writers. Her stories seldom fail to touch the reader—her humor can break the heart." - Michael Waters

"Her voice is sexy, crazy, and funny. It satisfies, it delights, but it also alarms, because it removes us from the commonplace, and forces us to stare wonder in the face." - Jerome Charyn

"Miss Paley is a natural all right. . . She has a wonderful faculty of making everything in her stories seem new and unused." - The New York Times

"Her language is so wild and fanciful that from time to time it takes off into a realm that borders on the surreal; her vision is of sexy little girls, loving and bickering couples, envenomed suburbanites, yowling job-hunters in an America that is nutty but so recognizable that it hurts." - Harvey Swandos

The Politician Turns Writer

Hart Recalls Triumphs, Ills of McGovern Campaign

By Terri Tresp

The Democratic Primary is obviously the most recurring item in the news today. So, when the editorial staff decided to run a book review on a current issue as opposed to one of a literary nature, the primary was a natural choice. However, it's a little early to have anything published about the ensuing presidential race, so I had to go back a few years to a previous election. I found a book written by one of this year's candidates about a past election that fit the bill.

Right From The Start, Senator Gary Hart's account of Senator George McGovern's unsuccessful bid for the presidency, from his announcement to run in 1970 to election night 1972, isn't a spine-tingling page turner. But, it is an insightful and well-written piece on the inner workings of a political campaign that deals with personalities, issues, strategies and conflicts. From his perspective as campaign director, Hart doesn't dwell on McGovern's policies or personal life, but on personality and ideology conflicts, the efforts of the masses of volunteers who believed in a cause and the emotional and physical strain of a long campaign—all areas the public is rarely exposed to.

If the primaries seem to drag on indefinitely to the public, imagine how the candidates must feel. Hart opens the book with McGovern's informal announcement to enter the presidential race in March 1970—two years and eight months before the 1972 November election. Three fourths of the book is devoted to the exhaustive Democratic primary, which according to Hart, no one gave McGovern a chance to win even though the party's main choice, Senator Edward Kennedy, was theoretically removed from the campaign because of the Chappaquiddick incident.

At times it seems Hart is patting himself on the back. After all he was one of the youngest national campaign directors, and he co-ordinated a come from behind victory at the Democratic convention. He seems particularly proud of the fact he formed an unorthodox decentralized campaign structure that capitalized on the less sophisticated supporters and workers on the grass roots level instead of the usual structure that radiates from a headquarters in Washington. At the same time he admits there were problems with system in terms of communication break downs—too many people scattered in too many areas of the country running separate campaign programs.

In the last quarter of the book, Hart spends a great deal of time on the vice-presidential selection after McGovern received the nomination. The process often resembles a high school superlative contest—let's pick the guy who will offend the least people regardless of whether he agrees with our policies. The selection was unique because the first V.P. choice, Senator Thomas Eagleton, was rejected after only a month on the ticket because of reported, and later admitted, alcohol problems and mental institution hospitalizations. According to Hart, this was "the time-bomb destined to destroy the infant McGovern Presidential candidacy." But Hart remained sensitive to Eagleton's situation.

It's interesting to note that Walter Mondale, now Hart's rival, was a serious choice, and one of Hart's preferences, for the vice-presidency. However, Mondale turned it down because it threatened his senatorial election.

Another familiar name that pops up in this section is Larry O'Brien, National Basketball Association Commissioner, who was selected as McGovern's campaign chairman. Jesse Jackson is by far the superior orator of the three democratic candidates due in large part to his background as a minister, but Hart has to be credited as an articulate, clear writer. He does get bogged down at times with names, dates, details, but he simplifies what could be a complex subject like politics. I'm assuming he wrote the book on his own with just the normal help from publisher editors, because no credit is given to any co-author. The ability to write, though, isn't surprising given Hart's educational background at Harvard and Yale.

His intelligence is also evident in the quotations of statesmen like John Kennedy and philosophers like Aristotle and Edmund Burke, and in literary allusions to Tolstoy's War and Peace.

During the 1984 presidential campaign, Hart has been tagged as arrogant and not very personable because of his intellect, but who would rather have in the White House, a comprehensive thinker or a successful (?) actor.

Persons pursuing careers in law or politics will find the insider details and references to former and current politicians and strategies fascinating. Those just curious as to what really goes on in the world of politics will also be impressed, maybe even amused and surprised, by Hart's book. Whether you're a Hart supporter or not.
